Captain Begardas Performs the Wonderful Feat of Killing Forty-Six Birds Out of Fifty-"I Quess That'll Do."

"Killed forty-six ont of fifty, sir !" What do I think of that score

"A wonderful feat !"
"A feat requiring cool nerves and keen eye." "Yes, under the circumstances of all the wrenging, all the talk, delay and breaking up of the original al match with Mr. Robinson for the big stake, the losing of the second, the driving birds—the best I ever saw in a trap—the character of the grounds and everything, this Western shot Bogardus, has persomed this afternoon a great feat in pigeon shooting, and done it nobly."

Such were the decided remarks of one of the best amateur shots in America last evening at twilight on the grounds of the Long Island Sporting Club, at Sealy's, near the Union Course, when Captain

H. Bogardes was

of a pigeon match against number, the stake being birds out of fifty and the amateur's expressions found a fitting response in five hundred hearts.

The gathermorat the grounds of the club was in consequence of the anacuncement that a noted veteran in the world of gentlemen sports, Mr. omson, had wagered Captein Bogardes $500, making a state of $1,000, that the latter could not kill forte-five birds out of fifty, if he were allowed to furnish the furis and bandle and trap himself, and that the shipoting be done under the old New York one varies rise and eighty yards boundary. This was agreed to, with but one exception, that Bogaras he sa w fit."

So fair so good. The agreement was signed, the day ap somted and the money staked. Seldom is there I nore interest manifested than observed among the gentlemen as they assembled on the snow cover so field about two o'clock. Judges were appoint ed and Mr. Parks named as referee while the trap was being placed. Murmurs of congratulation passed from mouth to mouth. Everything was con g on swimmingly and everybody was pleased. But at the moment when the

FIRST SHOT and the first dead bird were looked for, trouble arose about the manner that Begardus' backer had "placed the trap," the judge of Mr. Robinson appealing to the referee that it was not set as ground traps usually are. Upon inspection by that ground traps usually are. Upon inspection by that gentleman it was observed that by means of two won bars, each with an eye at top and driven into the ground, that the trap could be made to open from behind the bird instead of in front.

This was a firted.

Mr. Doxer, for Rogardus claimed that according to the written agreement he had a right to place the trap as release fit, and he saw fit to make it open in the manner described. Mr. Robinson's judge dissented, and finally, after an hour's wranging, the reserve dectated, when appealed to by both parties, who matually claimed the forfeit money, that "the trap is placed wrong in my judgment; we pever saw anything like it in this part of the country, and, according to the rules you are to shoot under, there shall be no obstructions. Now, gentlemen, those trop bars, small as they are, through which the string runs, I consider an obstruction, and decide the trap must be changed or Bogardus forests."

and decide the trap must be changed or Bogardus foriests."

Air. Dorey—Well, Mr. Referee, by an agreement I have the right to place the trap as I see fig. That's as plain as the lose on my face.

Referee—Carl see that way, and unless you tarn the trap will decide against you.

Air. Borry—We wont turn it.

This state of affairs changed the whole aspect at once and for a time threatened to send the party home without any numsement. But matters were arranged, after much talking, by the musual agreement that the main stakes should be withdrawn and A New Matta Made.

This time only for finy deliars a side, but the same conditions as to the number of birds, and the trap to be set. In the crainary way, Miles Jonnson was chosen referee. Mr. Robinson bandled and trapped. It was soon decided. Bogardus killed the first and Secone as gracefully and easily as ever birds were brought down, but missed successively his sixth, seventh, eighth, night and tenth, which lost him the maich.

The Second Match.

secuth, eighth, pinth and tenth, which lost him the match.

THE SECOND MATCH.

"Well, Bogardus," said Mr. Robinson, "how do you like these birds."

"They are rattlers."

"And yea" (here interposed Mr. Deforest), "I'll bet you, Bogardus, $.50 you can't kill forty-live out of any and set the trap your own way."

"Guess I'al have to lake that," said the quiet man with the gun. I should like to have it."

And here Mr. Doxey came up, and in benaif of Bogardus the $250 was staked and the $500 fat into Mr. John Taylor's hands.

The announcement of this match created anew the excitement manifested early in the day, and soon the crowd, which had been greatly augmented, fell back into the old "half-crice" suje, or monnied the fences, beaps of show and piles of fee to obtain a good position. Judges were again chosen, and Mr. Lamsphear consented to act as referee.

And the most profound shence Mr. Robinson trapped the first bird, then came the shooter's quick "CLL."

the trap fell and so did the bird, dend as a stone.

trapped the first bird, then came the shooter's quick "FULL."

The trap fell and so did the bird, dead as a stone.

"Eighty syainst a hundred he kills forty-nve," should a hoted betting man.

"Don't want it? Well, I'll do better. I'll bet you a hundred even he does it." One or two takers were found at these rates.

The second bird was hit, but fell dead out of bounds. Then the skill of the shooter became aparent, and the rest of the story is briefly told. He killed, as easily as he could rates his hand, all his birds up to the sixteenth, which, with the seventeenth, he lost, they failing out of bounds deadvery unfortunate for the man shooting, but which little incidents mightly pleased the crowd on the other side. The eighteenth, nineteenth and so on were scored, and, amid the applicase of many gentlemen. Bogardus loaded and pulled and killed his cirat up to the forty-eighth, which fell out of bounds. Thus he bad but on more to kill to win, and the forty-mith was tumbled over in the snow so soon as the trap fell.

This won him.

A MAR-TRAP IN TRENTON.

Another Drowning Case at the Water Power. On Sunday night a young man, supposed to be sonn Dugan, whose body has not been found, was drowned in the Water Power at Trenton. Deceased boarded at a house kept by William Donnelly, who identified the cap of deceased yesterday merming. The crossing of the Water Power at Steamboat and Furman strents is dangerous. About year and a half ago the City Fathers ordered a new bridge at the crossing of these streets, but up to the present time no structure has been erected, becaused was heard in piteous means to call for help, and some men went to the spot, but before they could ribber any assistance he had gone under and was hidden by the loc. Attempts were made yesterday to rocayer the body, but up to a late hour the offorth and be. In insuccessful. Dugan worked at the botter works. Charles Carr, and his absence from that establishme of yesterday morning, as well as the Mennidention of the cap by the bearding house keeper, is regarded as satisfactory evidence that Dugan was the man dry whole. drowned in the Water Power at Trenton. ### INTERESTING MASONIC RELIC.

In Newark, yesterday afternoon, while workmen were engaged in tearing down an old house on Broad street, the property of Alderman Grant, a large siab of uplands stone was unearthed, which proved to be full of interesting Masonic relica in the way of emblems and in criptions. In the way of emblems and inscriptions. The slab is seven and a half feet long, two feet wide and one foot thick. Carved on one side are various emblems and letters, only intelligible to Free Masons. There is a globe, square and compass; a representation of the Sun, a quarter Moon, the letter "G.," a star, the American coat of arms, the name "Adam," letters "M. A." and "J. M." and the date "1798." The house was built in 1784, and was for many years kept as an inn. Here, it is said, the leading brethren of the mystic tie throughout New Jersay used to meet frequently, but what the history of the stone is no one knows.

THE M'COSH LECTURES.

Dr. McCosh, in his lecture at Association Hall last night, made an "excursion" to Boston to review the Boston theology." During this metaphorical trip the lecturer gave eloquent analysis of the works of Channing and Parker and Emerson, giving these men and their theology due praise, but assigning the theology to a place among the unsubstantial unrealities. The latter part of the lecture was given to positivism, which the Doctor thought that a certain Theodorus must have written, of whom it is said that he wrote a treatise upon the "Awful No-thing," and then died.
